1. INTRODUCTION

The Promotion of Access to Information Act, No 2 of 2000 ("PAIA") was established to ensure that responsible parties are transparent in dealing with information, and accountable towards data subjects and their Constitutional rights. PAIA was enacted on 3 February 2000, giving effect to the right of access to any information held by Government, as well as any information held by another person who is required for the exercising or protection of any rights.

This right is entrenched in the Bill of Rights in the Constitution of South Africa.

Where a request is made in terms of PAIA, the body to which the request is made is obliged to release the information, except where PAIA expressly provides that the information may or must be refused. The Act sets out the requisite procedural process to such request.

And in a manner that balances that right with any other rights, including such rights contained in the Bill of Rights in the Constitution.
